Social class

The division of members of a society into a hierarchy of distinct status classes, so that members of each class have relatively the same status and members of all other classes have either more or less status.

- Societal prestige
- Income or wealth
- Social connections
- Power
- Education

Upward mobility (or downward mobility)

Families

Families are the first consumer reference group - where you see what you should be doing

Training consumerism (socialization)

Socialization in families

Children impart basic values and modes of behavior consistent with the culture

Moral and religious principles, interpersonal skills, dress and grooming standards, appropriate manners and speech, selection of suitable educational and occupational or career goals

Consumer socialization

The process by which children acquire the skills, knowledge, attitudes, and experiences necessary to function as consumers

Family influences

Preferences of children

- Start early - we see it as soon as they can communicate (point in stores before they can walk)
- Among the first words are consumer goods (e.g. Elmo)
- Fascinated by products, and at the same time, sometimes could care less (play with the box of the toy)

Intergenerational socialization: product loyalty transferred from parent to child

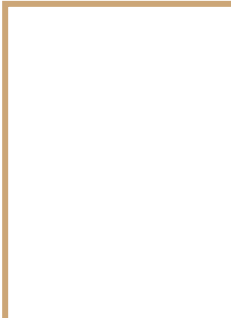

Socialization does not stop - ongoing - adults continue the process

Friends, Marriage => share preferences

Cultural Strategy

University of Minnesota
JOUR 4251 Psychology of Advertising
Chelsea St. Clair

Hi! I'm Chelsea St. Clair.

I am...

- ☆ A Cultural Strategist at Sparks & Honey
- ☆ The former West Coast Multicultural Advertising Intern Program Alumni Council Chair
- ☆ A 2019 Cannes Can Diversity Ambassador

What does a Cultural Strategist do?

“I work at a tech-led consultancy and work as a strategist helping companies with business solutions, product innovation, and communications strategies. Essentially I help answer seemingly impossible questions for clients who are open to transformative solutions”.

- ☆ Unpack Culture Daily
- ☆ Have a Point of View
- ☆ Real-Time Riffing
- ☆ Be Empathetic
- ☆ Tell a Story

Why are diverse teams important?

Diverse teams can provide several benefits:

- ☆ More money
- ☆ Better Results
- ☆ A more representative audience
- ☆ Create more relatable content
- ☆ Less bias

Tips for the industry!

Advertising can provide a lot of really cool opportunities, here's my advice on getting in:

- ☆ Find a Mentor
- ☆ Stand out
- ☆ Look for productive work cultures
- ☆ Read advice from communities like We Are Next

Tips for finding a job upon graduation!

Finding your perfect fit in advertising can be easy under the right circumstances, but a pandemic can definitely hinder your ability:

- ☆ Be flexible
- ☆ Be proactive
- ☆ Pitch your unique skills
